Where students read

Dear Educators,

Reading growth doesn't stop at the classroom door. When families have simple, practical ways to support reading at home, they can become powerful partners in helping students build confidence and strong reading habits.

The Sora Family Kit makes school-to-home connections easy. This ready-to-use collection of resources can be printed, emailed, posted to your school website or LMS, and shared with families at school or community events—minimal prep required.

What's included?

- ✓ A customizable letter to send home to families, introducing Sora and sharing ways they can support reading at home
- ✓ An easy-to-follow how-to flyer with steps to help families get started with Sora
- ✓ An infographic with research about active vs. passive screen time and the ways digital reading supports literacy
- ✓ At-home reading activity guides with simple, grade-banded ideas families can incorporate into daily routines
- ✓ Editable, grade-banded Sora Reading Bingo challenges with prompts that encourage students to explore new genres, formats, topics, and more
- ✓ A Read in Sora interactive learning module to help students and families confidently use the platform
- ✓ A Graduate to Libby kit to support continued reading post-graduation

How to use this kit

This kit is designed to be flexible. You can share it as a complete family resource, introduce materials throughout the year, highlight specific pieces during events like open houses, conferences, or literacy nights, or connect resources to classroom goals, reading initiatives, and students' needs.

We recommend starting with the family letter and how-to flyer, then layering in activities and challenges to keep engagement going.

Thank you for the many ways you support students as readers every day. We hope this kit helps extend that impact beyond the classroom and into students' homes.

Happy reading,
The Sora team
